INVADERS COMMITMENT TO THE COMMUNITY

When Tad Taube became the charter owner of the Oakland Invaders, not only was his goal to field a successful football team, but also to make a lasting contribution to the communities of the East Bay.

"When we began planning all the elements of organization and development for the Oakland Invaders, we were conscious of our responsibilities to the communities we serve," Taube said. "Becoming involved in programs which would give us an opportunity to become a true community resource was a major element in implementing plans for our franchise."

With the consolidation of the Invaders with the Michigan Panthers, owners A. Alfred Taubman and Robert Taubman have joined Taube in the continuing successes of the Invaders' efforts in the community.

The heart of the Invaders' efforts is a program called Send-A-Teen.

With the generous involvement and support of many Bay Area businesses and leading citizens, the Send-A-Teen program will enable approximately 15,000 underprivileged teenagers to attend Invaders home games in 1985.

A major sponsor of Send-A-Teen, and the program's oldest benefactor, is the Koret Foundation. The Koret Foundation is one of the largest private foundations in the United States.

INVADERS COMMITMENT TO THE COMMUNITY

The Koret Foundation has been a major force in Send-A-Teen during the previous two years and again will provide its support and encouragement in 1985.

During Send-A-Teen's first two years, nearly 35,000 teenagers were able to watch the Invaders play football. Along with watching a football game, teenagers were provided with a free Invaders T-shirt and, in 1984, the Teen Club was created to give these youngsters a further sense of belonging.

Through a substantial grant, Pacific Gas & Electric (PG&E) has emerged as a leading sponsor of Send-A-Teen in 1985. PG&E's generosity and community support will not only send a good portion of the 15,000 teenagers to Invaders games this season, but additionally will provide every Send-A-Teen teenager with an Invaders Teen Club cap.

"The goal has always been to give these teenagers a chance to see a professional football game, something they wouldn't ordinarily be able to afford," Taube said. "The Koret Foundation and PG&E are leading the way, helping these youngsters be a part of something in their community. And most importantly, it can help these youngsters develop solid role models. Professional athletes are role models that stick with kids for a lifetime."

One individual who is most aware of this fact is Sandy Pyer, executive director of East Bay Community Foundation, the organization which administers the Send-A-Teen program.

"Youth programs are of particular interest to the foundation," Pyer said, "and we view Send-A-Teen as having a positive impact on impressionable youngsters such as these."

of community groups like East Oakland Youth Development Center, Marcus Foster Institute and Bay Area Boys and Girls Clubs.

As Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson said, "Send-A-Teen is an example of a major commitment to community service that the Invaders have already demonstrated in their short history here."

To find out how you can be a part of Send-A-Teen, write to Executive Director Sandy Pyer, East Bay Community Foundation, 6230 Claremont Ave., Oakland, CA 94618, or by calling (415) 658-5441.

Another of the Invaders' major programs in the community is the USF/Invaders Athletic Foundation.

Developed in conjunction with the University of San Francisco, the foundation addresses the problems and possible solutions generally inherent to professional athletes and/or college athletes aspiring to become professional athletes.

Most recently, the foundation conducted a seminar, "Substance Abuse & The Athlete," on the campus of USF. The keynote speaker was Carl Eller, an ex-Minnesota Viking, and long-time campaigner against substance abuse in professional sports.

The foundation's board of trustees, USF President Rev. John Lo Schiavo, S.J.; Rabbi David Davis, assistant vice president of university relations; and Taube, also a USF trustee, intend the foundation to find a broader base of academic institutions and professional teams.

"Counseling and services to athletes while in college will better enable them to deal with the pressures and uncertainties in the confusing world of professional athletics in America today," Lo Schiavo said.

The foundation's areas of emphasis include:

- Completion of Academic Requirements for Degree Attainment
- Vocational Counseling, Guidance and Research Programs
- Drug/Substance Abuse Prevention
- USF as Learning Center for Seminars, Symposia and Library

Elsewhere, the community work by the Invaders' ownership, players and cheerleaders continues to help those in need.

The list includes the U.S. Marine Corps Toys For Tots, Save High School

INVADERS COMMITMENT TO THE COMMUNITY

Sports Program, Dan O'Hara Handicapped Awareness Foundation and the Oakland Mayor's Summer Job Program.

In addition to supporting major programs, Invaders players and staff are continuously making appearances before hundreds of community groups. Some of these include Special Olympics, Sickle Cell Anemia, March of Dimes, American Heart Association, Muscular Dystrophy Telethons, United Cerebral Palsy, Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, United Way, Red Cross and the annual Jerry Lewis Telethon.

In fact, the Invaders' cheerleaders, the "Blue Angels," have performed on the Jerry Lewis Telethon in Las Vegas the last two years and will be making an unprecedented third straight appearance in 1985.

"I was quite impressed when I learned the extent of the club's community service," Alfred Taubman said. "I've always been a firm believer — and supporter — of programs benefitting the disabled and underprivileged. I think it's something sports teams must return to the communities supporting them. It's vital. And I'm glad to continue that support in Oakland."

INVADERS COACHES

CHARLIE SUMNER
Head Coach/Vice President

Charlie Sumner's ability to help turn losing football teams into champions reveals a relentless desire for success in the Invaders' head coach and franchise vice president.

Balanced by a no-nonsense coaching style and a down-to-earth personality, Sumner looks to turn yet another team with a losing record into a champion.

After 21 years as an assistant coach in the National Football League, Sumner was hired by Invaders President Tad Taube on April 20, 1984, spending the balance of the 1984 season evaluating the players and observing the organization.

"The first thing I wanted to accomplish when I took over the duties of head coach on a full-time basis was to develop a winning attitude and direct that toward winning a championship," Sumner said. And how does a coach do that? "By having good players and good coaches," he said.

Born Oct. 19, 1930, in Radford, Va., Sumner attended Dublin (Va.) High and played three seasons at William & Mary (1952-54) before graduating with a degree in physical education.

Drafted by the Chicago Bears, Sumner played defensive back and was named the club's Rookie of the Year in 1955. He spent the next two years in the Army before returning to the Bears in 1958. Sumner played in Chicago through the 1960 season, then was selected by the Minnesota Vikings during the expansion draft.

After playing for the Vikings in 1961 and 1962, Sumner retired as a player and began his coaching career in 1963 with the Oakland Raiders, a team that finished last in 1962 with a 1-13 record. Sumner's last season in Oakland was 1968, and by then the Raiders had won their first two division titles and played in Super Bowl II.

In 1969, Sumner went to Pittsburgh where the Steelers were 1-13 in 1968. He left after the 1972 season, a season that saw the Steelers win their first-ever division title.

In 1973, Sumner joined the New England Patriots, a team that finished last in 1972 with a 3-11 record. Sumner's last season in New England, 1978, saw the Patriots soar to an 11-5 record, claiming their first division title since 1963. In 1976, the Patriots' 11-3 mark earned them a wild card berth in the playoffs.

Sumner returned to the Raiders in 1979. In 1978, the Raiders had missed the playoffs for the first time in six seasons. During Sumner's second stint with the Raiders, the team won two division titles, made three playoff appearances and won Super Bowl XV and Super Bowl XVIII.

Sumner's influence on a team's defensive performance has gone hand-in-hand with the team's success:

— The Raiders gave up 28.4 points per game in 1962. From 1963 to 1968, the Raiders allowed 19.3 points per game.

— The Steelers gave up 28.4 points per game in 1968. From 1969 to 1972, the Steelers allowed 20.4 points per game.

— The Patriots gave up 31.9 points per game in 1972. From 1973 to 1978, the Patriots allowed 19.6 points per game.

— The Raiders gave up 17.7 points per game in 1978. Despite increasing rule changes to benefit offenses, the Raiders, from 1979 to 1983, allowed 20.9 points per game.

In 1985, Sumner will support a defense that has allowed 18.5 points per game over the last two seasons and he expects to turn around an offense that has scored just 15.6 points per game in two seasons.

"The players and the coaches are here. I don't have any doubts that things will be different this season," he said.

Sumner and wife Barbara live in Orinda, Ca. They have two sons, Terry and Colin.

RON LYNN
Defensive Coordinator

Defensive Coordinator Ron Lynn has molded a solid unit during the last two seasons, and it comes as no surprise that most of Lynn's 19 years as a coach have been spent on the defensive side of the game.

Before joining the Invaders in 1983, Lynn spent three seasons at the University of California, the last two as defensive coordinator.

Born Dec. 6, 1944, in Youngstown, Ohio, Lynn attended Struthers (Ohio) High and graduated with a degree in chemistry from Mount Union College in 1966. In 1970, he earned a master's degree in education from Toledo.

From 1967 to 1973, Lynn was an assistant coach at Mount Union College, then became the defensive coordinator at Kent State in 1974. Lynn held that post through 1976 and, in those three seasons, Kent State's defense was No. 1 in net yards allowed.

He served as a running backs coach and defensive coordinator at San Jose State in 1977-78 and was defensive coordinator at University of the Pacific in 1979. He then went to California from 1980 to 1982.

Lynn is single and lives in Walnut Creek, Ca.

INVADERS COACHES

FRED BILETNIKOFF
Receivers Coach

Fred Biletnikoff encounters his first full-time position as an assistant coach in 1985 when he'll take over the duties of receivers coach. With 14 pro seasons as a wide receiver behind him, Biletnikoff will not be a stranger in a strange land.

Since his last season as a player in 1978, Biletnikoff has been in private business and has volunteered his time to work with college receivers.

Born Feb. 23, 1943, in Erie, Pa., Biletnikoff attended Technical Memorial High in that city. After three seasons at Florida State University, Biletnikoff was a second-round draft choice of the Oakland Raiders in 1965.

In his 14-year career, Biletnikoff had 589 catches for 8,974 yards (15.2 avg.) and 76 touchdowns. His 61 catches in 1971 led the NFL, and he had personal bests of 1,037 yards receiving in 1968 and 12 touchdown catches in 1969.

Additionally, Biletnikoff was selected for three AFL All-Star Games and four Pro Bowls. He had 21 games of 100 yards or more receiving in his career.

One of his career highlights occurred on Jan. 9, 1977, when he was voted Most Valuable Player of Super Bowl XI. His 4 receptions played a major role in the Raiders' 32-14 win over the Minnesota Vikings.

He and wife Jennifer live in Alameda, Ca., with daughters Tracey and Natasha.

BILL DICKEY
Special Teams Coach

Bill Dickey begins his third season as the Invaders' special teams coach after joining the organization in 1983.

Dickey took a one-year leave-of-absence from his head coaching post at College of San Mateo in the fall of 1984 to devote his fulltime efforts to the Invaders. Dickey had been the head coach at College of San Mateo from 1975 to 1983.

Born Feb. 21, 1940, in Oklahoma City, Okla., Dickey attended South San Francisco (Ca.) High. He played two seasons at College of San Mateo and transferred to Utah State where he played under Head Coach John Ralston. Dickey earned a degree in education and psychology in 1962 and spent the next three seasons as a high school coach.

In 1965, he joined the staff at College of San Mateo and stayed there until 1971 when he served as an assistant at Stanford.

Dickey was an assistant in 1972-73 at the University of California, then became an assistant coach at Utah in 1974 before becoming the head coach at College of San Mateo.

Dickey and wife Susan live in Foster City, Ca. They have two sons: Chris and Jeff.

INVADERS COACHES

MIKE DOLBY
Defensive Line Coach

Mike Dolby begins his second season as the Invaders' defensive line coach after having coached 21 years at the college and high school levels. His contribution in 1984 was evidenced by a club-record 53 quarterback sacks and the ability to work with young, developing talent.

Prior to joining the Invaders, Dolby was the defensive coordinator in 1982-83 at Nevada-Reno, where the Wolf Pack led the Big Sky Conference in defense both years.

Born Feb. 11, 1939, in Olympia, Wash., Dolby attended Hoquiam (Wash.) High. He went on to play defensive tackle and end at Oregon State, earning three letters. He graduated with a bachelor's degree in industrial education and a master's degree in education.

From 1962 to 1967, Dolby coached high school football in Oregon before returning to Oregon State as an assistant coach in 1968 where he tutored the defensive line and linebackers for three seasons. In 1971, he was named the Beavers' defensive coordinator and remained in that position through 1975.

He moved on to San Jose State the next year, where he again worked with the defensive line and linebackers, in addition to working as the defensive coordinator. Invaders Defensive Coordinator Ron Lynn was a staffmate in 1977-78.

Dolby went from San Jose State to Northern Arizona University in 1979, serving as defensive coordinator for three seasons before moving to Nevada-Reno.

Dolby and wife Judie live in Alameda, Ca. They have three children: Michael, Mark and Michelle.

ED FLANAGAN
Offensive Line Coach

Ed Flanagan is in his second season as offensive line coach after joining the Invaders April 12, 1984. The Invaders were then 0-7, and it was no surprise that the offensive line's performance — and the club's record — began to show dramatic improvement.

The surprising thing was that Flanagan's coaching experience was limited to being a "technical advisor" at the junior college level, however, he had played 12 seasons in the National Football League.

Born Feb. 23, 1944, in San Bernardino, Ca., Flanagan attended Altoona (Pa.) High and played center at Purdue University from 1962 to 1964. He graduated with a degree in physical education.

A fifth-round draft choice of the Detroit Lions in 1965, Flanagan became the starting center and was selected for the Pro Bowl four times (1970-73). After 10 seasons in Detroit, he played with the San Diego Chargers in 1975 and 1976, then retired.

Flanagan operated a printing supply company after his playing tenure ended, then occasionally worked with junior college athletes.

Flanagan and wife Pam live in Colton, Ca., with children Edward, Jr., Amy and Megan.

MIKE HALUCHAK
Linebackers Coach

In his third season as the Invaders' linebackers coach, Mike Haluchak has developed one of the most solid linebacker groups in the USFL.

Prior to his joining the Invaders, Haluchak coached at the college level from 1976 to 1982 and, before that, spent four years as a high school coach.

Born Nov. 28, 1949, in Concord, Ca., Haluchak attended Clayton Valley (Ca.) High. A four-year letterman at USC, Haluchak played in the 1969 and 1970 Rose Bowls. He graduated with a history degree and earned a master's degree in education from Cal Lutheran College.

After four years as a high school coach, Haluchak spent two seasons as a graduate assistant at USC. He was an assistant at Cal State Fullerton in 1978, then spent the next two seasons as an assistant at University of the Pacific.

Haluchak took a position at California in 1981, then spent the next season at North Carolina State before joining Oakland's staff in 1983.

Haluchak and wife Carol live in Alameda, Ca.

LARY KUHARICH
Running Backs Coach

Lary Kuharich will serve as the Invaders' running backs coach in 1985 after a season as offensive coordinator of the San Antonio Gunslingers.

Prior to his stint in San Antonio, Kuharich was the offensive coordinator in 1982-83 at California where one of his fellow coaches was Ron Lynn, the Invaders' defensive coordinator.

Born Dec. 20, 1945, in Middletown, N.Y., Kuharich attended St. Joseph's High in South Bend, Ind. He played three seasons at Boston College as a halfback and defensive back, graduating in 1969 with a marketing degree.

Kuharich was a 16th-round draft choice of the Minnesota Vikings in 1968 and, when he did not make the club, he started his coaching career at the high school level. He first college coaching job came in 1970 at Boston State College where he went on to become head coach from 1971 to 1974.

He was the defensive coordinator at Rhode Island in 1975, linebackers coach for the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League in 1976 and linebackers coach at Temple University from 1977 to 1980.

In 1981, Kuharich served as offensive coordinator at Illinois State before joining the California staff the next year.

Kuharich has two daughters, Lara and Theresa, and he lives in Alameda, Ca.

INVADERS COACHES

MacARTHUR LANE
Running Backs Coach

Returning for his second season as the Invaders' running back coach, MacArthur Lane offers invaluable experience. After all, last season the Invaders set a USFL record with 300 yards rushing in a 17-13 win at Chicago, plus Lane has 11 years of experience as a running back in the NFL.

Lane joined the Invaders on March 14, 1984, when Chuck Hutchison took over as head coach for the departed John Ralston.

Born March 17, 1942, in Perote, Ala., Lane attended Fremont High in Oakland. After a season at Laney College in Oakland, Lane transferred to Utah State where he lettered three seasons.

A first-round draft choice of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1968, Lane played four seasons there and led the NFL in 1970 with 11 rushing touchdowns.

Traded to the Green Bay Packers in 1972, Lane played three seasons there before being traded to the Kansas City Chiefs. Lane played from 1975 to 1978 with the Chiefs leading the NFL with 66 catches in 1976.

In his career, Lane rushed for 4,656 yards on 1,206 carries (3.9 avg.) and 30 touchdowns, plus had 287 catches for 2,786 yards (9.7 avg.) and 7 touchdowns. His most productive season came in 1970 when he gained a career-high 977 yards and caught 32 passes. For his efforts, he was voted to the NFC Pro Bowl squad and was named All-NFC by The Sporting News.

Lane is co-owner of Nautilus of Alameda, a physical fitness center in Alameda, Ca. He and wife Edna live in Oakland with daughters Rhonda and Cassandra.

Nov. 20, 1984 — The USFL announces the consolidation of the Oakland Invaders and Michigan Panthers, with Vince Lombardi as president and general manager. A. Alfred Taubman owns the controlling interest in the club with Tad Taube having a minority interest.

Jan. 21, 1985 — Invaders return to Mesa (Ariz.) College to open training camp under Head Coach Charlie Sumner.

MONSIGNOR MICHAEL O'BRIEN AWARD

The Monsignor Michael O'Brien Award, as voted by the players, is awarded to the Oakland Invader who best demonstrates the spirit of "team before self."

The Downtown Oakland Booster Club — representing all Invaders Booster Clubs — presents the award in the memory of Father O'Brien who died May 11, 1983.

O'Brien, the long-time pastor of Sacred Heart Parish in Oakland, also was the director of the St. Joseph's School for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing. One of the most loved and respected members of the East Bay community, O'Brien was a charter member of the Downtown Oakland Booster Club and, as its official chaplain, attended all the club's functions.

"When Msgr. O'Brien died," said a biography distributed after his death, "the outpouring of people of every age and race — the high and the middle and the humble little ones — for the rosary and the mass was tremendous . . . He was a priest who loved everyone he ever met. He laughed his way through life and made others laugh with him. He had a million friends yet never gave himself selfishly to a few . . . He went anywhere to baptize, to marry, to visit the sick, to bury the dead . . . He will not soon be forgotten."

The inaugural award in 1983 was presented to tight end Raymond Chester. Chester was named the USFL Man of the Year in 1983, emblematic of the player who best combines athletic performance and community service.

In 1984, linebacker Frank Manumaleuga was voted the award. Manumaleuga, who started each game during the first two seasons, was described by a teammate as "a guy who got along with everyone and was a real leader. He was usually quiet and when he said something, everyone paid attention. He always wanted his actions to speak for him."

Feb. 18 — Roster cutdown to 50 players

PLAYOFF INFORMATION

After the 18-game regular season, the two teams with the best won-lost-tied percentage from each conference will qualify for the playoffs. Of the remaining teams, the four with the best won-lost-tied percentage — regardless of conference — will qualify for the playoffs.

The No. 1 seed in the playoffs will be the first-place team with the best won-lost-tied percentage. The No. 2 seed will be the first-place team from the other conference. The six other teams to qualify for the playoffs will be seeded No. 3 through No. 8 based on won-lost-tied percentage.

The Quarterfinal Playoffs will have the No. 1 seed hosting the No. 8 seed and the No. 4 seed hosting the No. 5 seed in the upper bracket, while the No. 2 seed will host the No. 7 seed and the No. 3 seed will host the No. 6 seed in the lower bracket. The host teams for the Semifinal Playoffs will be those with the highest seed in their respective bracket. The winners of the Semifinal Playoffs will meet in the USFL Championship Game.

INVADERS RADIO NETWORK

KGO Radio (810) carries Oakland Invaders broadcasts throughout northern California, something it has done for every game the Invaders have played.

KGO, a 50,000-watt station owned by American Broadcasting Companies, has been serving the West for over 50 years and has recently moved into its new, spacious headquarters at 900 Front Street in San Francisco.

KGO Radio Sports Director Joe Starkey is in his third year as the voice of the Invaders, handling the play-by-play. Following an early business career, starkey dove headlong into the world of sports broadcasting.

His list of credits includes coverage of baseball, basketball, football, hockey and soccer for such teams as the Oakland Seals, Pittsburgh Penguins, Colorado Rockies, Minnesota Vikings, Denver Broncos and the University of California Bears.

It was Starkey's call of the final five-lateral play of the 1982 Cal-Stanford Big Game that captured him nationwide attention anc a first place sports award for outstanding sportcasting from the Peninsula Press Club.

In addition to his play-by-play talents, Starkey covered the 1984 Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, becoming the only sports director to do so at that Olympiad.

"Obviously, I enjoy doing play-by-play," Starkey said, "but the Invaders are something very special. It's special because I've been calling the games since the very first kickoff. Being able to watch an organization grow and develop—and to be a part of it—is really distinctive.

"And, watching the Invaders' organization become a major—and necessary—part of the Bay Area sports community is good to see. I think the club will continue to have a big impact on the Bay Area sports scene."

Since Oct. 29, 1982 when KGO Radio and the Oakland Invaders signed their first agreement, the impact on the Bay Area sports scene has indeed been noticeable.
